

Bank Sohar Supports Ministry of Information Competition

Bank Sohar is joining hands with the Ministry of Information to conduct an electronic competition celebrating the 39th National Day Programmes in the country. The competition brings into focus the achievements and developments in Oman during the last four decades and highlights Oman's strides towards becoming a digital nation. The Ministry of Information is conducting the innovative contest through www.omanet.om, the Ministry's official bilingual website and the portal for Oman's Electronic network websites. The competition will run through the month of December and will be closely linked to the developments in the country in various fields.

“As a bank with reliance and emphasis on emerging technology to power business and as our own contribution to work towards national goals, we are happy to join hands with the Ministry of Information to take this electronic competition to the people. In our continuing efforts to excel, Bank Sohar has pioneered electronic banking ever since we opened for business. Our customers in far flung places have access to electronic channels that are available anywhere in the world,” said Mr. Khalfan bin Rashid Al Tal'ey, DGM, Retail Banking -Bank Sohar. “It is a matter of prestige for us to find mention on the Ministry of Information website as a bank providing Internet Banking in the country,”
